TOYS FOR NEEDY CHILDREN.

Louis Arnone, of the Oak Grove Pharmacy, heads a committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, of Monterey, which is engaged in collecting discarded toys, and having them reconditioned and ready for distribution before Christmas to the children of destitute families in the peninsula area.

Mr. Arnone has made the Carmel Sun office a receiving station for these toys. During the coming week Carmel people are urged to look around and try to find some toys that can well be spared, deliver them to the Sun office not later than December 19, and we will take them to Monterey and turn them over to the proper committee which will see that they are given to children who otherwise are very likely not to receive a visit from Santa Clause this year. Dolls are as acceptable as toys.

VOLUME NO. TWO CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIF., THURSDAY, DEC. 13, 1934. NUMBER 46

Council Sets Date Of Bond Election

The date of the city hall bond election was set for Monday, January 7, 1934, by the city council Wednesday night.

The amount that will be asked is $31,000.00, to augment a grant by the federal government of $11,200, the total amount to be used in building a city hall which will accommodate the fire department with dormitory for the firemen, two cells for prisoners, city clerk's office, court room and police department as provided for in the plans and specifications of the building. The site selected by council is the city park at Ocean and Mission streets.

The agreement between the government and Carmel-by-the ea, setting forth the terms of the loan and the grant, a lengthy document, was read by Judge Wood, and Resolution No. 593, approving the agreement, was passed.

A bond election ordinance was then approved by all except Councilman Bernard Rowntree.

The polling place for precinct Nos. 1 and 2 will be the lobby of Sunset school auditorium, and for precincts 3 and 4, the fire house.

A request from Fire Chief Robert Leidig that the fire hydrants be tested and a diagram showing pressure was read and will be acted on at the next meeting of the council.

Officials for the election were appointed as follows:

Margaret Clark, Elizabeth Sullivan. Robt. Duriee, Henry Larouette, Clara Leidig, ames Zuck, R. W. Root and A. W. Beckett.

CENERAL ART CLASS ADJOURNS FOR HOL'DAYS

The class in general art with Mrs. Charlotte E. Morgan as instructor, held its last meeting before Christmas vacation, on Tuesday evening, December 11. will meet again at Sunset in the old auditorium on y 8. On closing night was an exhibition of s' work.

Local Politics Will Prove Exciting In Coming Year

Plenty of material is promised to keep the local political pot boiling throughout 1935.

First we have the proposed bond issue for a city hall to thresh out, and along with that will come the selection of a site. Already the question has brought forth heated arguments for and against a city hall, and in favor of this or that site should the bonds be voted. Some want the building to occupy a certain spot in the city park; others want it on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth; while still others have various other sites in mind.

In keeping with the traditions of this quite unique and some say individualistic community the issue gives promise of becoming red hot before it is finally settled.

Then, to keep the home fires burning, we are promised an even hotter and more stirring local scrimmage over the proposed sale by the Del Monte Water Company of the present water supply systems of Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel to a public utilities district to be organized and authorized at a special election.

As outlined, the district would comprise the following territory:

All that area lying north of Carmel river between the bay shore and the state highway, including Carmel Point, Hatton Fields, the City of Carmel, La Loma Terrace, Carmel Woods, all of Pebble Beach and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club; the city of Pacific Grove; the city of Monterey; Presidio of Monterey, and Del Monte precinct.

The population of the proposed district is approximately 20,000 and assessed valuation is estimated at $25,000,000.

The district is designed to provide service to residents of Carmel Valley and to residents of East Monterey, should they demand it, while either or both of these areas contigious to the proposed district, may become part of the district at any time such a step may be desired.

Only a week or two have elapsed since this proposal was first made public, but even now most people have very definitely taken sides in the matter.

Some contend that public ownership and operation would effect an enormous saving to water consumers; others argue that it is only the scheme of the present owners to saddle onto the public a worn out and obsolete water system. They claim that the mains are rusted out, the machinery worn out, and that the public will be asked to pay a big price and get little in return.

However, as yet no bond issue for the purchase of the water works has been proposed. The procedure laid out is to first form an utility district embracing the territory outlined. At the same time the district is voted upon, names of five nominees for trustees of the district will be submitted. If elected they will serve without salary, their only compensation being a fee, fixed at $5.00 per meeting, for their attendance at such sessions of the district board as may become necessary.

After the district is formed negotiations for the acquisition of the water system will be undertaken, in order to decide upon a fair price for the physical properties of the company. If a satisfactory bargain can not be reached, condemnation proceedings may be started.

As soon as the cost of the company's properties is determined, a bond issue will be submitted to the voters. Approval by a two-thirds majority is necessary for passage.

So it would appear that there will be plenty of time and opportunity for the public to be-

Mary Garden Thrills Carmel Audience; Large Attendance

(By Pauline Meeks)

A throng, including some persons as distinguished as herself, gathered at Sunset auditorium last Monday night to hear and see Mary Garden, persons who have seen her in many operatic roles in America and Europe, who can remember when she was so great an actress and possessed such a fine personality that she outshone singers with twice the voice.

For one who had never seen or heard Mary Garden before, the evening was a great success. Her intimate talk on Debussy and her own career was an astonishing combination of ballyhoo and childlike sincerity.

Her gossip about Maeterlinck especially his wanting to photograph her soul; her candid statement that Debussy didn't like anybody and nobody liked him; didn't prepare one for the exclamation, "How Debussy would have loved being here with you in this beautiful place this evening."

"Let yourself be charmed," was the slogan of the evening. Frankly, there was one person who has never been more charmed in a lifetime. Mary Garden in a gown of gold sequins and crimson slippers chatting informally but oh so artfully all of the time.

As a singer who does not sing, who says in advance publicity that no one ever said she could sing, Miss Garden devoted only a small part of the evening to song. "Chevelure" and "Mandolin" in the last group were most beautifully presented.

Jean Dansereau, the facile young pianist who supported the glamerous Mary Garden in her program, played Debussy with such ease and so sympathetically as to further charm the concert crowd.

Every musician who was heard to remark on Dansereau's skill afterwards in the lobby was most enthusiastic. David Alberto said, "He is one of the best pianists you have ever heard." Incidentally the afore-mentioned musicians would be as likely to say he was terrible if they thought so. Laurels for Monsieur Dansereau.

Another triumph for the sponsors, Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous.

NATIVITY PLAY AT 7:30 NEXT THURSDAY

"The Nativity" mystery play, which is becoming a tradition of the Sunset school, will be presented at 7:30 next Thursday evening, in the Sunset School auditorium. This sixth performance, like the others, is a free gift to anyone who will attend.

Based on a very old French play, "The Nativity" follows the Scripture story with quaint medieval interpretations of characters, and is enriched with old carols.

Those who plan to accept this Christmas gift from the children are urged to be in the auditorium promptly at seven-thirty.

Over one hundred and twenty children, representing all of the classes, will take part in the dramatic spectacle which will have special settings, lighting effects and costumes to carry out a dramatic simplicity suitable for The Nativity. Only those who have seen it before know what a truly spiritual drama the children make it.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hilbert, the former a brother of the Hilberts of Carmel, were here last week end on a visit. Mr. Hilbert is employed at Roos Bros. in Alameda.

WAR FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS

Rt. Rev. James Freeman, Bishop of Washington, with the assurance that the church readily and gladly supports the efforts of Attorney General Cummings through a great national conference, to mobilize the moral forces of America in the interests of crime suppression and a more drastic enforcement of law.

"This action is most timely," said the Bishop. "Recent years have witnessed new and glaring examples of lawlessness, examples that, unchecked and unrestrained, must issue in conditions threatening our peace and our security.

"The home is invaded, the most despicable and heinous of crimes are wantonly committed. Men, women and children are imperiled and frequently murdered; officers of the law and civilians alike are shot down upon our public highways and racketeering in sinister forms is widely practiced.

"A situation is disclosed that calls for the united efforts of all our citizens to combat and extirpate these evils.

"One of the most serious and menacing aspects of this crime manifestation is the part that youth plays in its notarious practices. The high percentage of capital offences committed by young men, frequently by boys, is appalling. Obviously, our character-building institutions —the home, the school and the church—have signally failed to maintain the ethical and moral standards of those who constitute the growing army of youthful criminals.

"It has been said that 'we are raising up a generation of lusty young pagans, and sooner or later they will make havoc of our institutions.'

"The church and its members in particular must address themselves to a situation that grows increasingly menacing. They must sustain the law enforcement authorities, but beyond this they must be made alive to their responsibilities to deal more definitely with conditions that promote and encourage crime. Failing in this, they jeopardize the home and imperil our existing institutions.

"The present hour is a grave one. All loyal citizens are called to a sustained effort that crime conditions may be abated. A new kind of civil war is on and it must be met and courageously dealt with. Crime and the criminal must be defeated.

On Wednesday afternoon the Pinochle Club met at the home of Mrs. Alfred Rico. Those who joined in the game were Mrs. Mannie Tarr, Mrs. Gene Ricketts, Mrs. Arthur Hilbert, Mrs. Clark Bruce, Mrs. Herbert McGuicken and the hostess.

DOPE ON THE SPOT

The federal drive against the illicit narcotic traffic, nation-wide in its scope, is bearing gratifying results. Altogether 791 suspects throughout the country had been arrested up to December 10 and among these are several "big shots." In the entire category of vice the dope evil absolutely is the most degrading and the most insidious. Once its tentacles ensnare a victim there is but slight chance that he will ever be able to free himself from the accursed habit.

Every police officer and every citizen should back up the federal officers in what at last appears to be a bona fide attempt to stamp out the curse.

Senator Sanborn Young of Santa Clara county, present head of the State narcotics bureau, and who for years has led the fight against narcotics in California, must view the present federal activity with not a little satisfaction.

One and a quarter million Catholics of New York have solemnly pledged themselves henceforth to remain away from salacious motion pictures and to avoid theatres which persist in showing them. Another sign that the pendulum of moral standards has started to swing the other way.

Three Monterey county youths were accidentally shot while hunting pigeons Sunday, one in the Chew's ridge region and two near the Big Sur. A good old lady once declared that a gun was "dangerous without lock, stock or barrel." Anyway, with men, mostly greenhorns, swarming the woods as they do during the open season for game, hunting ceases to be a sport and becomes an adventure.

However much the depression has been felt in Carmel, a stranger would not suspect that it had been serious. Business men welcome you with a smile and salespeople are alert and courteous. That speaks volumes for the sound philosophy that makes cheerfulness a habit. Going around with a long face and harping about poor business for a thousand years will not overcome the universal state of fear responsible for all the world's present economic troubles.

MOLLY MAGUIRE EXHIBIT TO OPEN

On Sunday afternoon next, at four o'clock, December 16, an exhibit of water-colors by Molly Maguire will be opened for two-weeks showing. Friends of Miss Maguire are giving her a reception and tea from four to six o'clock, to which the public is invited.

Yes, we are told also that we may expect to see the fur fly at the school election in March, when some person must be elected to succeed Mrs. Taylor, whos term expires.

On this election it appears hinges the control of the board of trustees and the policy of the schools.

So the coming year shouldn't be so dull for Carmel.

WOMEN'S CLUB TO GIVE NEW YEAR PARTY

As is the custom the Carmel Women's Club will be host at an open house for their families and friends between four and six o'clock on New Years day.

In past years this affair has proved to be an enjoyable one.

Plans for the occasion are in charge of the Hospitality committee headed by Mrs. F. E. Ten Winkle and including Mrs. Hart Clark Mrs. James L. Cockburn, Mrs. Hudgins and the chairman of the house committee, Mrs. E. R. Tutt.

Hostesses for the occasion will be chosen among the club members and will probably include members of the board.

The Girl Scouts house will be appropriately decorated to carry out the holiday idea.

Betty Hyde has joined her family in their home on Casanova and Eighth, returning from San Francisco, where she has been singing on the radio for the past few months.

Mrs. Alfred Rico of Carmel, accompanied by Mrs. Mannie Tarr of Monterey, motored to San Mateo last Sunday to attend the races at Bay Meadows.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berkey went to San Francisco the first of this week on a business and Christmas shopping trip, returning to Carmel on Thursday.

GARROTTS ON TRIP SEE MANY CARMELITES

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Garrott have returned to Carmel after a week spent n Tucson, Ariz., and in Santa Barbara, cutting short a motor trip that was to have taken them to Mexico City New Orleans and Miami, Fla.

In Tucson the Garrotts visited Tilly Polak in her shop there in the historic government building. In Santa Barbara on the return trip they were entertained by James Dorrance, the novelist, who is the Santa Barbara representative of the Los Angeles Times, and who was once a Carmel resident. Mr. and Mrs. Garrott were guests also in Santa Barbara of the Misses Lucy and Martha Farwell and Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Ericcson, all of whom lived in Carmel at one time.

CHAT

By BOB.

Our council should take a sneak up the valley and inspect that pipe line, then get an estimate on what it would cost to replace it, before trying to put over an indebtedness on Carmel's taxpayers that will take years to liquidate. Do Carmel real estate agents think people will invest here with a heavy bond issue saddled on the village?

Strange no mention was made of the pipe line at the water pow-wow in Monterey. It was carefully avoided.

What guarantee have prospective buyers of the water company got that they will get the entire water shed and that the company will not build other reservoirs above the present one?

The city council should call a public meeting and get the taxpayers' opinion on this water question. It seems, when one is elected on a council, it's their privilege to impose on a city any scheme devised by outsiders.

Ben Franklin, late of the Bonita lather palace, is now splashing suds at the Del Monte Chowmeinerie.

The Carmel Pistol club gave a "feed" a few nights ago. Paul Funchess won first prize by storing away the most abalone chowder.

Carmel has the distinction of having a street with two sewers in it, a sort of playing both ends from the middle. What administration pulled that "boner?"

The Carmel street department has tarred up the cracks in Carpenter street's roller-coaster concrete roadway. Who was responsible for the contractor putting down a poor foundation?

F. P. Howard got out of the septic tank———muddle, and is now in the water company's reservoir.

"Robinson Crusoe's" man "Friday" instead of scaling ladders, is now, so it is stated, scaling fish.

OLD MAN

By EDMUND CORAM

OLD MAN.

You know him. Sure you do. Every village and town has its old man. That elderly, homeless individual to whom no one claims kin, yet all take some kind of interest in him. some kind of interest in.

The handy man, who turns the ice cream freezer when company is expected and who receives as payment for his services a meal, with, perhaps, a dime or so for his tobacco money. The old fellow that splits your wood, or does the odd chores for a pair of hubby's or brother's cast-off pants, or an old coat, or something else he needs.

Perhaps if lacking in spryness, or enfeebled by old age, he is the butt of the witticisms of the village joker; the recipient of prankish jokes of those who enjoy a laugh at the expense of some one else; the target of the small boy pest, who is never so happy as when annoying someone who cannot retaliate.

Quite interesting, those old chaps.

This particular Old Man came first to my attention under a circumstance that was laughable.

I was seated on the veranda of the old hotel meditating whether to assemble my fishing tackle and have a try at one of the favorite riffles some distance from the village, or else take a book and read myself to sleep, for the day was such that either was adaptable.

My thoughts were interrupted by the sound of voices close at hand. One was that of a youth, crying out in a gleeful voice, "I'll throw it; I'll throw it. See if I don't." The other voice, that of an elderly person, judging from the quavering tones, was admonishing: "Don't you do it, you young rascal. I'll tan your hide if you do."

A high hedge obstructed my vision and I was unable to see those engaged in the controversy or the cause of it. As the voices drew nearer a scuffling of feet on the walk made known that they were near. I left my seat and went to the hedge entrance to see what the din was about. A laughable sight met my gaze. There, on the walk, were the two who were making the racket; a young lad of ten and an old man whose age might have been anywhere between seventy and ninety. The youth, backing away from the old man, just out of reach of a cane held by the ferrule end and with the butt of the joke making vain efforts to hook the handle around one of the lad's legs, was holding at arm's length a large and exceedingly warty toad, making motions as if to throw the hideous thing at man's face.

As the boy made final utterance of "I'm going to throw it" he brought back his arm as though to fulfill his words, a startling change came over the old man's features. His face grew red with rage, his eyes opened to their fullest extent and seemed to pop out, nostrils were distended and to finish the picture a set of teeth protruded from between his lips to an alarming degree, the whole making a sight that was horrible. The boy gave one glance at the gargoyle-like thing before him and with a yell of terror dropped the toad, which sought refuge amid the hedge stalks, and fled from the scene, leaving the old man victorious.

Pushing the teeth back into his mouth and making sure they were set right, the victor gave vent to his feelings with a grunted "huh, guess that fixed the young scamp," went on his way with a satisfied air.

Returning to my comfortable chair I resumed the trend of my thoughts, finally deciding in favor of the riffle.

Later that afternoon while whipping the lower end of a rapid I came upon the lad whom the old man had vanquished. Curious to know the cause of the set-to between them I opened the way to information by asking the usual question: "How's the fishing?"

"Guess it would be pretty good, if I had more bait."

"Have you no bait?" I asked.

"Only had three worms when I came here and the minnows have chewed them all up. Guess I'll have to go home now."

"Ever try a fly? They're pretty good at times."

"Had one, once, but it wore out," he answered in a rather disconsolate tone.

"Here, try one of mine," I returned, and offered him a hackle that the fish were rising to.

"Gee, mister, that's fine. There's a big fellow under that bush down there. Watch me get him."

Tieing the fly to the end of his line, which had no leader, he slowly went down stream toward the bush. With an expertness you hardly would expect in one so young and equipped only with a common cane pole, he made a pretty cast, bringing the fly across the water close to the bush. A break, a swirl of the water, followed by the lad's cry of "I've got him," made me realize that fancy tackle was not all there was to fishing. A nice one; fully as large as any I had in my creel.

"Golly, mister, that sure was a dandy fly you gave me." And thus was the opening made for me to satisfy my curiousity.

"What was the trouble between you and the old man this morning?" I a sked.

"He kicked my pup one time and I was getting even," was the reply. "I wasn't going to hit him with the toad. I was only fooling. Gee, I thought he was coming to pieces when he looked that way."

"But you ran away," I ventured.

"So would you, if you was as scared as I was," he came back.

I laughed and the incident was closed. I had my answer.

Later on I met Freddie, for that was his name, many times. Often he would seek out good fishing holes that only he seemed to know of. With ample lunch for two from the hotel we would trudge around the country enjoying ourselves, for it was vacation time for both of us, and from him I heard much concerning the people of the village. Of the old man no one seemed to know from whence he came or what his name really was, just "Old Man" was all they called him whenever he was needed for any chores, and as such he became one of the village fixtures.

It was with real regret I noted the final day of my life of ease. I had come to like

Freddie and some of the village folk. Freddie was at the depot to bid me good-bye on my return to the city. In after days I recalled the wistful gaze of the boy as the train was leaving and resolved to spend my next vacation at the same village and enjoy his refreshing company again.

Busied with my work in office and court; I am of the legal profession; weeks and months went by until the time again for my annual outing. I at once thought of my youthful friend and the pleasant village people I met the year before. That was the place for me. As I prepared for the trip, packing what would be needed, visions of the splendid trout holes Freddie had shown me came to mind, and also of the time I had given him a fly to catch the big fish below the bush. There would be no cane pole for him this year; a jointed rod, a creel, a silk line and reel and a book of flies and leaders would be my gift. I smiled as I fancied his joy at receiving the first real fishing outfit he ever owned.

My partner was at the depot to see me leave, good naturedly bantering me on my eagerness to get away, not knowing the pleasure I anticipated during the coming month. Our talk drifted into business matters and of cases pending in court. As though it were an after thought he requested, if circumstances permitted, that I look up a missing heir to a large estate we were handling, in order that disposition of property could be made. Pocketing the data he gave I promised to attend to the matter and boarded the train.

It was late evening when I arrived at my destination. Beyond a few villagers, whom I recognized, the depot platform was vacant. The hearty greeting of my host and an excellent dinner prepared by his kindly wife, made my return most pleasant. It was late when we retired but I left word for an early call as I was anxious to meet my young friend.

Next morning, soon after breakfast was over I went through the village seeking Freddie, spending a few hours in a useless quest. The remainder of the day I spent in straightening out my belongings.

I continued my search the following morning. Hardly had I left the hotel when I met Freddie, walking along with his arms filled with flowers, his head bowed as though in deep thought.

"Well, my young friend, where away and why so thoughtful," extending my hand at the same time.

A gladsome smile lit up his face as he sprang forward to clasp my hand.

"Criminy, mister, but it's good to see you again. I was just thinking if you would ever come back, like you said."

"Yes, I've come back. Couldn't miss all the good fishing and times we had last year."

"We did have lots of fun, didn't we?" he replied, and it seemed to me there was a touch of sadness in his tone.

"Why the flowers, Freddie?"

"They're for the Old Man."

"The Old Man! Why, what has happened to him?"

"He's dead." The boy's voice broke into a tremble and a tear coursed down his cheek.

Dead? When did he die?"

"About two weeks ago."

"What did he die of?"

"The doctor said it was pneumonia."

"You see, mister, it was this way. After you left last year I told him I was sorry for being mean to him. He said it was all right and we would be friends. We seen a lot of each other and I came to like him most as well as I did you. He told me many stories of places he had been. One day we went fishing down to the mill race and my dog, the one he kicked last year, fell into the water and couldn't get out. I tried to reach him, but the bank was too high. The race carried him down to where the old man was sitting on the bank. He laid down and hooked the end of his cane into the dog's collar, held him until I came and we both pulled him out. The dog started to shake and the old man stepped away to keep from getting sprinkled. He stepped too far and fell into the race. It wasn't deep and I helped him get out, then took him home. He was in wet clothes so long that he got pneumonia and died." Tears were falling from the boy's eyes as he told the pathetic tale. My own eyes were somewhat misty, too.

"And the flowers, Freddie? You are taking them to his grave?"

"Yes."

"I'll go with you."

Together we walked in silence to the graveyard. Placed amid a setting of tall evergreens, the well-kept graves in neat, orderly rows, the last resting place for the village folk seemed peaceful. Going ahead Freddie led me to a distant corner of the lot where a newly made grave lay, the soil showing scarcely a blade of grass. A profusion of flowers, some withered, some fresh, attested that the village people paid homage to one who by doing a simple act for a boy had given his own life in doing it. Tenderly Freddie placed the flowers on the mound. Pulling aside the withered ones that were at the grave head, he pointed:

"See, Mister. They even put a head board up for him. It's got his name on it."

I looked. Then gasped. The name on the head board was that of the heir I had been asked to find.

Great Stride Been Made In Science War on Tuberculosis

Research has added another milestone in the battle against tuberculosis by giving the world a new and more sensative diagnostic test, it was announced last week by Dr. F. M. Pottenger, a director of the California Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Pottenger said:

"Financed by the sale of Christmas Seals, the Research Committee of the National Tuberculosis Association has studied tuberculin, the material used in the diagnostic skin test, and has finally isolated that fraction of the tuberculin responsible for the reaction which is the specific tubercule protein.

"The resultant product, called Purified Protein Derivative or Tuberculin P. P. D. is a grayish white powder, completely soluble in faintly alkalinized diluent. The strength of this powder is so great that one fifty-thousandth part of a milligram (1-3,250,000 grain) is required as an initial diagnostic dose. Tuberculin has long been used as an aid in diagnosis because as a skin test it produces a reaction in any individual that has been at any time infected with tuberculosis. This new tuberculin contains only that portion of the tuberculin which causes the reaction—it is therefore much more sensative than the old test and produces no other reaction in the individual taking the test than a slight, red mark on the skin at the point where the test is made."

Dr. Pottenger said that many years of study lay behind this discovery and gave much credit to Dr. Long and Dr. Seibert of the Research Committee for their intensive work along this line. He spoke of the process of "eracking the tubercle bacillus and removing the protein fraction from the sugars, fats, waxes and insoluable residue by a method known as ultre-filtration.

"The ultra-filter is an ingenious apparatus consisting of a porous thimble covered with a dialyzing membrane suspended into the filtrate in a closed jar, the thimble being connected with a vacuum pump. The crystalline chemical elements are drawn through the walls of the ultra-filter, but the tubercle protein, being colloidal and a jelly-like substance of larger molecule size, is held back the jar.

"This material called Tubercle Protein Ultraconcentrated is precipitated with trichloracetic acid, a chemical reagent which causes the protein to settle out as the grayish white sediment. When this is washed with ether and reduced to complete dryness under vacuum, the resulting product is Tuberculin P. P. D."

Dr. Pottenger said that he believed the perfection of this new testing material and the simplicity of its use would soon bring about its widespread use by physicians for discovering tuberculosis in its early stages.

SIREN TERRORIZES THE WHOLE TOWN

The fire siren which was heard last Friday at two a. m. was not announcing a declaration of war, nor was Pine Inn on fire. At such an hour and blown so fiercely, many a Carmelite in his bed thought the British were com ng or a ship had gone on the rocks at Point Lobos.

It was a fire on a vacant opposite the old Carmel Hospital in the Carmel Woods. Every noble volunteer fireman except one sound sleeper turned out to extinguish the blaze which might have spread into the woods and caused a great loss had not Mrs. Edith Shufleton turned in the alarm and had not night policeman Earl Wermuth so efficiently and thoroughly sounded the siren.

Right here is the answer to Christmas shopping

"Just what I wanted"—that is what you wish people to say about your Christmas gifts. And that is what they will say when you give electrical appliances. For no gifts better express the thoughtfulness of the giver at Christmastide—the season of thoughtful remembrance.

With the beauty of sparkling chromium or porcelain finishes, electric appliances have an immediate gladsome appeal. And in months and years to come they will bring joy, happiness, beauty, comfort and leisure to the gift getter.

This year electric appliances should be doubly acceptable. For not only do they bring added service and comfort into the home, but, in most cases they can serve at half cost on ½ Off EXTRA Electricity.

The answer is ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES GIVE DOUBLE VALUE THIS YEAR!

THERE are scores of gift ideas in the glittering array of electrical appliances now on display in all the stores. Most of them carry very modest price tags. In no other class of gift possibilities will you find greater value.

Choose among the many table appliances so ideal for preparing informal dinners or gay luncheons. This year the electric casserole, the sandwich grill, coffee maker, coffee urn set, automatic toaster and the waffle iron are very popular.

See the appliances that have a strong person-to-person appeal, such as an electric razor, curling iron, kitchen or boudoir clock, table radio or warming pad.

And with ½ Off EXTRA Electricity in effect, now is the time to really own an electric refrigerator, new washing machine and ironer, hot water, portable heater, electric range or dishwasher.

A little thrifty to buy these electric conveniences and comforts this Christmas. For you see they will help pay for themselves with half price electricity during the next twelve months.

KUSTER AND CREW MAKE HIT IN FRESNO

Fresno newspaper critics said that Edward Kuster's Monday night production of "Counselor at Law" was the best thing that had been done there in the Little Theatre for the eleven years that there had been a little theatre in Fresno.

It will be remembered that a Fresno girl, Barbara Collins, made a great hit as the telephone operator in the play. She played again on Monday. Ruth Thompson of Fresno and Carmel created the part of Cora Simon and Frank Hefling went over to do the politician, Peter Malone. Sonya Gunderson, who actually made the Carmel audience weep as Mrs. Becker, the mother of the headstrong young radical, acted the same part for the Fresno production.

Ted Kuster again played the part of Simon, the counselor at law. It is a role in which Hal Garrott thinks he did the best acting of a busy dramatic career. It is likely true since for twenty years Kuster played just that part in real life. Before retiring to begin intensive work in the little theatre Kuster was an attorney.

The play was put on in the White Theatre before an audience of nine hundred.

IT AIN'T WHAT IT USED TO BE—YET

Many Carmelites can remember when the whole village got together to dance and make merry in the old auditorium of the Sunset school. The fortnightly dance at the Denny Watrous Gallery last night was similar. However, in the good old days everybody went, from the youngest to the oldest members of the family. It was a big informal party.

If we can support such a social occasion again it will add greatly to the amusement of a long dull winter. Alan Knight and his band play for the dancing and no one needs a formal invitation.

CONSUL BRAVO VISITS MEXICO

Enrique Bravo, Mexican consul, stationed at Monterey, left last week for Mexico City on a two months vacation. Bravo is socially popular in Carmel. His brother, Nacho Bravo, who studied photography here with Edward Weston, has recently gone to San Francisco and is carrying on his work in photography there. Ruben Gaxiola is replacing Bravo in the consulate during Mr. Bravo's absence.

Leslie Tooker, daughter of Mrs. G. F. Tooker, North Casanova, wishing to be in a metropolis for the Christmas holidays, has obtained a position in the book department of The City of Paris in San Francisco for a few weeks, during the holiday rush.

Sunset School Notes

Arriving at Sunset School Thursday from the office of the County Superintendent of Schools, was Mr. Lafka, bringing with him the audiometer belonging to Monterey county. The hearing of each child in grades four to eight was tested. This was one test that was real fun for the children. Putting the little receivers to their ears they listened to a phonograph record giving them numbers which they wrote on their test papers.

Basketball Tournament.

Big boys and little boys basketball players and would-be basketball players have been having a grand time participating in the school basketball tournament. Rehearsals Show Excellent Talent

With casting complete and rehearsals going into the second week on the Carmel Players' production, "Springtime for Henry," Whitmore Waldegrave, the director, appealed to persons interested in the theatre for help in the technical details.

"We are badly in need of set designers and builders, a stage manager, property man and so on," Waldegrave said. "I need every person I can get to help in the staging of the show and I know that volunteer workers, if they are interested in this type of theatre work, will be more than repaid in experience."

Waldegrave said he was well satisfied with progress being made on the show which will run December 27, 28 and 29 at the Playhouse.

The story concerns Henry, played by Digby Smith, whose romantic attachment to Miss Smith played by Charlotte Lawrence, furnishes both comedy and love interest to the play.

In support are Reginald Foster, Pacific Grove attorney, as Johnny Jelliwell, wealthy English manufacturer of motor cars, and Mrs. Jose Perez-Brown as Julia Jelliwell. All of the players are experienced although they have not been seen here. Digby Smith has just finished work for Paramount on "Lives of a Bengal Lancer;" Reginald Foster has had experience with a number of little theatre groups as have Miss Lawrence and Mrs. Brown. Whitmore Waldegrave was formerly technical director of the Civic theatre at Palo Alto. This is his second show in Carmel.

GEORGE GRAFT COMMITS SUICIDE

News reached Carmel via city newpsapers of the death on Monday night of George Graft, in his mother's apartment in San Mateo, caused by cyanide poisoning administered by himself in an hour of despondency.

Graft was 24, son of the late George Graft, former president of the California Mutual Building and Loan Association. He is survived by his mother and two sisters, Mrs. Nell Sullivan and Sandra Graft.

For many years the Graft family was well known here. The young man's death comes as a shock, especially to the youth of Carmel. Funeral services were held in San Jose on Wednesday.

Fine Exhibition Of Water Colors

An important social and art event was the formal opening on Sunday at the Denny Watrous Gallery of the exhibition of water colors by Miss Edith McGuire of Monterey.

Having lived in Monterey for fifteen years, Miss McGuire comes from Ireland where she is a member of a distinguished old family. This is the first one man exhibition she has given on the peninsula for years, though she exhibits in Stockton each year and has occasional showings in other cities.

One acquainted with most of the local painters is amazed to see for the first time an exhibition of excellent water colors by an artist who has lived and worked here for so many years. The answer to this is that Miss Maguire is a very iteresting person. Friends arranged the exhibition at the gallery.

The effect was made by the thirty large water colors is gay and richly colorful. Miss Mc Guire handles water color with ease, it would seem, and her coloring is bold and natural. Her flowers, of which there are a number of pictures, leave nothing but the fragrance for the imagination. Wisteria trailing from a balcony, soft petunias in a bowl, touched by sunlight, a whole field of begonias in varying shades like a fabric design are delightfully real.

Working with the difficult medium of water color, Miss Mc Guire achieves textures and colors of each flower with fine accuracy. A large variety of subjects include several marines, cows on hillsides, old adobe buildings, boats, clouds and still life offer an exhilerating treat to those who prefer water color as a medium.

Mrs. F. A. Ingalls of Pebble Beach, Mrs. J. E. Poindestre of Monterey and Mrs. Sidney Kinnerstey of Monterey presided at tea which was served to many Monterey Peninsula people including Miss Effie Fortune, Mrs. Mary Young-Hunter, Mrs. Clifford Whitehead, Mrs. Frank Comins, Miss Ellen O. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Nye, Dr. Margaret Levick, Dr. Lilian Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Swain, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Musaus, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Anderson, Miss Hazel Watrous, Mrs. Welligton Clark, Miss Dene Denny, Maj Ralph Coote, Katherine Mac Farlane Howe, Miss Winnifred, Howe, Ross Miller, Mr. Myron Oliver, Mr. F. CONTINUED SEARCH BRINGS NO TRACE OF MRS. SHAFFNER

Englund and Robert Norton, who were in the searching party.

Elliott Boke Shaffner is well known to many Carmel people, being a member of the pioneer Boke family of Carmel. She left here after her marriage to Joseph Halle Shaffner, wealthy official of Hart Shaffner & Marx, in 1927, and has returned occasionally to visit her mother, Mrs. G. H. Boke, and her sister, Mrs. Marion Todd, both of whom have been here most of the time for twenty - three years. Mrs. Shaffner has been here with her child for a month and had made plans to return to join her husband in their Chicago home for Christmas. She is the daughter of the late Prof G. H. Boke, former dean of law at the University of California.

As the troops went through Carmel and the beach in one line like a fine comb, the only possible clue was a shoe found in Cook's cove. However, although it was the size worn by the missing woman, it could not be recognized by servants or members of the household as belonging to her. Also it is believed that, had it been lost by her, the bloodhounds would have found it. The shoe was near the edge of the water but was not wet as it would have of the ocean.

Major Lee Watson has been been had it been washed up out flying his plane up and down searching the coast this morning.

Mr. Shaffner is reported to be expected to arrive here today.
